

The Don Bosco Social Centre and the Naples International Airport

present: the Inform@giovani

'Informagiovani,' an on-line information centre designed especially to help guide young people in search of their first jobs, was presented at the Don Bosco Social Centre today.

The initiative, sponsored by the Naples International Airport, was explained by the Director of the Social Centre, Father Gennaro Comite, with the participation of the President of the Province, Amato Lamberti, and the Human Resources Director of Gesac, Maurizio Castellucci.

The centre gives updated information on personnel selection both in the public and private sectors, and tries to meet the needs of supply and demand directly on the web. 'Informagiovani' also offers advice on how to write a curriculum vitae, how to prepare for a work interview, and how to participate in professional courses or start an internship.

The service, which has already been available for several months, has offered guidance and help to around three hundred young people with limited levels of education who have found a valid point of reference for the area.

"For more than a century, the Salesian order have been dedicated to supporting the most disadvantaged young people. Today, the main problem is job placement, and knowing this, we have launched, thanks to the help of Gesac, a service that is able to listen to these young people, and when possible, furnish a response to what has become a true social emergency" – affirms Father Gennaro Comite, Director of the Centre.
