VOLOTEA 717s WARMING UP ENGINES AT CAPODICHINO ON ROUTE TO 2014 SUMMER DESTINATIONS

The new routes from Naples to Bordeaux, Olbia and Skiathos are off to a start. With an eye to the future, the airline confirms winter service to Genoa and Palermo.

Naples, 29 May 2014 – Volotea, the low cost airline which connects small and medium-sized cities, confirms a hail of inaugural flights in late May and June! To the delight of Campania passengers, new service between Naples –Bordeaux will be inaugurated 30 May and service to the island of Santorini will be reactivated on the same day. On 31 May, instead, the first flight on the new Naples Olbia route is scheduled for operations. In June, Greek destinations return to the spot light with the reactivation of service between Naples and Mykonos (01 June) and on 24 June, the start of new service to Skiathos. If all this weren't enough, the airline, keeping a step ahead of the game, has also confirmed service to Genoa and Palermo for the winter season.

“Our results at Naples Airport have been extremely positive– affirmed Valeria Rebasti, Volotea Commercial Country Manager for Italy – We firmly believe in the potential of Capodichino and have worked very hard to build a network of appealing destinations which reflect the needs of Neapolitan passengers: from Naples, we operate flights to a total of 8 destinations in Italy (Genoa, Olbia and Palermo), France (Bordeaux e Nantes) and Greece (Mykonos, Santorini and Skiathos). Clearly, we have no intention of stopping here: together with Gesac management, we are exploring all possible scenarios in order to increase our traffic flow at Naples airport.”

“We have decided to stay one step ahead of the game and tickets are already available for our first 2014 winter routes - continued Rebasti – because we want to give our passengers the possibility and benefits of organizing winter transfers, short breaks and vacations ahead of time and saving a great deal of time and money. Thus, we are confirming service from Naples to Genoa and Palermo for this winter.

But the new announcements from Volotea aren't over yet, as Rebasti explained: “With the aim of further improving flights for our passengers on board our fleet of Boeing 717, we have decided to allow passengers a second carry-on bag free of charge”.

All Volotea tickets are available at www.volotea.com, in travel agencies or by contacting the Volotea call centre at 895 895 44 04, with rates starting as low as 29.99 Euro one way, airport fees included.

VOLOTEA is a new reliable, punctual and comfortable low-cost airline providing service between small and medium-sized cities which frequently don't have access to inexpensive, direct flights. Volotea offers low-cost fares and ensures a pleasant journey, with courteous personnel, assigned seats and the comfort of a spacious aircraft like the Boeing 717 configured with only 5 seats per row (2+3). In addition to the traditional carry-on bag, passengers are allowed a small, additional bag (such as a lady's handbag or a computer bag). Volotea operates in 17 Italian airports: Ancona, Brindisi, Bari, Cagliari, Catania, Florence, Genoa, Lamezia Terme, Lampedusa, Naples, Olbia, Palermo, Pantelleria, Reggio Calabria, Turin, Verona and Venice. Its European operational bases are located at Marco Polo Airport in Venice, “Falcone Borsellino” Airport in Palermo, Nantes Atlantique Airport in Nantes and Mérignac Airport in Bordeaux. Tickets may be purchased on-line (www.volotea.com), through the call centre at 895 895 4404 or in travel agencies. Volotea dedicates special attention to passengers during all phases of the voyage, both on land and in the air.
