

PRESS RELEASE

Some 210,000 passengers expected during the Christmas holidays – from 19 December 2007 to 7 January 2009 -

Forecasts call for some 210,000 passengers at Naples airport during the Christmas holidays from today, Friday 19 December, to 7 January 2009: 130 thousand on domestic routes, 70 thousand on international flights and 10 thousand on charter flights.

The average daily passenger flow will be in the area of 11,000 passengers and the largest anticipated passenger flow is Monday 29 December with some 13,000 passengers.

The most popular international destinations for the 2008 Christmas holidays are: London, Paris, Madrid, Barcelona and Prague.

Below is a summary of the passenger traffic forecast (19 December – 7 January) including specifics for New Year 2009 and the Epiphany:

Traffic forecast for the entire Christmas period	210,000
Forecast for New Year 2009 (28 December - 2 January)	65,000
Forecast for the Epiphany (3-7 January)	57,000

The 2008 (spring-summer) network of direct flights was 32 international destinations, 15 domestic destinations and over 50 charter destinations.

Naples International Airport will bring the year 2008 to a close with some 5.65 million passengers, with a 2% decrease in traffic primarily owing to the repercussions on traffic caused by problems related to the transformation of Alitalia, the Italian flag carrier airline .
